Hotel Bambú

since 1995

Once there was a dutchman traveling from Quito to the coast on a bicycle and he stayed one week camping in Canoa. He liked it so much, the people, the beach, the climate, the culture that he told himself "This is where I am staying." By that time there were no hotels and only three restaurants. Later his family joined him and the hotel Bambú was born. In the year 1998 there was "El Niño" a 7.2 earthquake hit the town but little damage was done to the hotel and after a short time the hotel could open its doors again. One day they found a pelican on the beach with a broken wing, they fixed his wing and they called him "Pancho". Pancho was a personality, he felt at home in the hotel. He would pose for the cameras and beg for fish in the kitchen. After a while Pancho was healthy and full of life. That's when they found out that Pancho was a woman pelican and not a male but they already had baptized her like Pancho. Over the next years they build the casa Bambú in Quito and the cabanías Bambú in Mindo. In the year 2016 there was a 7.8 earthquake which destroyed most of the hotel. After four months the hotel could open again with the rooms that were left and large furnished tents. Canoa is recovering from the earthquake and so are we. We are full of energy to give you an excellent service.
